MODERN HUMBUGGERY. [American Farmers' Advocate.]

"Strange every young man in the United States isn't a millionaire," might be the exclamation of an unsuspecting person on reading the extravagant offers of many advertisers. Immense salaries are offered through newspa per advertisements, and in response to inquiries circulars are sent explaning how the wages are to be earned. Here are a few samples: You are offered $5 to $20 per day by Stinson & Co., $10 per day by Bowen & Co., $12 a day by Hastings & Co., $20 per day by Stackpole, $25 per day by Murray Hill Publishing Company, $30 per day by C. Thornton, &c. Nearly all want agents for some worthless little patent or recipe, and your "salary" is only paid after you have sold a certain amount of goods. Under no circumstauces is an agent promised less than $5 a day, and from that up, up, up, till we reach the "strictly" "sub rosa" proposal of the counterfeit (saw dust) operator to pay $1,-(100) a day to any shrewd man who is "up to south," &c., i. e., who is, to use "Sut Luvengood's" pet phrase, "a pat'ral born durn fool. An exception among advertisers is one who guarantees $10 to $15 per day, sure. That's fair, but rather indefinite.
"And still they come"—those Michigan swindlers. The last is G. W. Bodine & Co., and they'll pay everybody "$35 per week and expenses." If we had to order a jewsharp from Maine or Michigan, we'd have it sent C. ().. and subject to be returned if we cheated.

Several bogus advertising agents have been reported lately, and publishers should be careful who they trust. It is generally the advertiser himself, who, wishing to get trusted, sends his orders in the name of some ficticious

J. Wright & Co., New York, now advertise the "Geneva Watch," the whole works of which being made of machinery, which turns out 6,000 a day, the manufacturers are enabled to offer them at four dollars cash. Of course there never was a "Geneva," "Parisian," or any other watch made for four dollars, but evidently a great many people accept the state-ment that it had been "accomplished at last." This Wright is certainly a genius, but a very evil one. He seems to be identified with as many swindles as the notorious Elias.

in a sewing machine costing less than $10, and there is only one of any value sold at that

And now these mothers-in-law are at it. Her daughter, supposed to be dying with consumption, she appears to her distressed son-in law in a dream, bids him go to the mountains of Scotland in search of a mysterious "yerb," which being found is administered to the dying wife, and instantly restores health by its magic powers, and of course it is at once placed 'in the philanthropist. This business seems to be destined to take the place of the declining counterfeit game.

We have been asked, if patent medicines are all more or less frauds, how it is that they report so many wonderful cures? First, because it would be difficult to compound a medicine which, administered in thousands of cases, would not prove beneficial in some; second, if the patient, while taking medicine, recovers from any other cause, he is sure to attribute it to the medicine; and, third, many of the certificates are forgeries.

Books, proposing to teach how to get rich, are usually sterotyped lectures on the virtue and value of economy, or a collection of old recipes. Such notices as R. L. Woodcott's, "12 samples sept postpaid for 50 cents which retail readily for $10." should read, "12 recipes stolen from an old book."

We hear of a rascal travelling through Tennessee, under various aliases, and swindling Odd Fellows' ledges at a lively rate. Watch for him, friends of the I. O. O. F., and if he comes prowling around, expecting charities because he knows how to squeeze your hand and make signs, treat him to a free excursion on your biggest and most odorous biliy goat.

Hubbard & Co., of New York, exposed last month, are sending out lithographed letters showing how railroad stocks fluctuate, and how easily a fortune may be made by speculating through their agency. Only one or two prominent stocks on the New York market, or Hubbard & Co.'s list, have varied enough in the last thirty days to pay the cost of a "call,"
"put." or "straddle," and, consequently, not one dollar in ten invested through them finds "put." or "straddle," and, consequently, not one dollar in ten invested through them finds its way back to the pockets whence it was extracted by the honeyed arguments of the swindlers. About the same as investing your money in a lottery or a game of keno.

The set of cheats having their headquarters at Garrettsville, Ohio are not driving such a business as formerly. Probably hatching some new fraud for the fall and winter campaign Goldsmith said he would not think of bringing out a book in the dog days, and the swindlers seem to think it bad policy to risk their precious schemes on the summer market.
